Poros Sunday morning

My Lord!

I lost no time in delivering your honest letter to the President Zaimis and I have reason to think that the members of the commission have already studied it to deliberate in its contents. With report to the dissenting, I regret to say that continues. There is in fact a rather faction in Greece which seems determined to sacrifice the [1] best of causes to their passions and jealousies. Nothing indeed but a very prompt male of proceedings is likely to bring the individuals to where I allude, to a sense of duty. Amidst these scandalous doings, we have just heard that the Turkish Fleet has left Constantinople with six thousand troops for Negropont. If they [2] reject the truce the armament may arrive in them in few days at farthest. It is really lamentable to see such things. I shall, when I have the honour to see Your Lordship at 4 o'clock, communicate whatever I may have in the intermediate time. Please I am my Lord most earnestly and respectfully yours

E. Blaquiere

March 30th 1827