Dear Jackson

I am now made better and hope to get to town on Thursday. I might be perhaps on Wednesday, but no time is now last by delaying until more weighty objects are disposed of by His Majesty and his Ministers are replaced by others who will listen to reason and do Justice.

What a state the corrupt Counsellors and Senators have brought this fine country to! A riot is expected, I hear on the Kings going to the city. Indeed I [1] should feel no regret to learn that the indignation of the people is expressed against Wellington and his stupid counsellors.

Pray go on with the introduction on your own plan, and we will commence printing as soon as I have the pleasure of seeing you.

Believe me
Dear Jackson
ever most sincerely yours
Cochrane
